

Doug Jose

Doug grew up in Ontario on a dairy and fruit farm. He got his BS in General Agricultural Sciences from McGill University, MS in Ag Economics from the University of Massachusetts and Ph.D. in Ag Economics from Oklahoma State University and has been with the University of Nebraska since 1980. Among his professional accomplishments are the Winning the Game program (one of three creators) and Market Journal, <http://marketjournal.unl.edu>, which focuses on practical risk management strategies for ag producers. He is a former director of the International Farm Management Association and is current past president of the Extension Section of the Agricultural and Applied Economics Association.

Doug and his wife Doreen live near Bennett, NE at Trillium Grove Farms and continue to farm. Their daughter, Darrell lives in Toronto and works with the HGTV and FOOD channels in Canada.
